With a practical understanding of insurance company operations forged across his career, Marc counsels insurers, reinsurers, HMOs, boards of directors, private equity firms, hedge funds, agents, brokers and other industry participants on regulatory challenges, compliance and market opportunities.

Thirty-plus years of insurance industry experience

Marc advises and counsels domestic, foreign and alien insurers, reinsurers, agents, brokers, third-party administrators, private equity firms and hedge funds on public offerings, private placements, domestications, mergers, redomestications, demutualizations, corporate governance and regulatory issues, mergers, acquisitions and divestitures. He is a member of the boards of directors of several insurance companies. Marc is experienced with state laws that impact insurance companies and businesses that do business with insurance companies. He regularly advises clients on regulatory matters, including investment limitations, market conduct and financial examinations, compensation of producers, holding company compliance, excess and surplus lines, licensing and the organization of subsidiaries and US branches. Marc also advises companies and educational institutions on self-funding and captive insurance alternatives – including playing a key role in the creation of a law enabling self-funding of student health plans on behalf of some of New York's largest private universities. Marc has worked with and structured reciprocal exchanges and can navigate the unique regulatory issues associated with them.

Marc counsels domestic, foreign and alien insurance companies on state laws that govern their operations. He assists these companies with policy wordings, corporate finance transactions, reinsurance contracts, cut-through endorsements, commutations, rate and form filings and distressed asset situations. He was responsible for the first listing of an alien insurance company on the New York Stock Exchange.
