David Kravitz serves as a trusted advisor to private equity sponsors, family offices and middle-market and family-owned businesses across industries. When they are ready to make an acquisition, sale or financing, David uses his deep understanding of their businesses to execute transactions that work for them. As an outgrowth of the close relationships he develops with his clients, he also serves as an outside general counsel, advising on the full gamut of day-to-day legal issues.

The knowledge to provide practical solutions

David knows that business owners need solutions to legal issues that take into account the intricacies of their business. His detailed knowledge of his clients' industries, along with his extensive experience executing complex transactions, helps him to craft strategies that meet business priorities while also managing risk. David takes a practical approach to deal-making that puts a premium on big-picture issues that matter to his clients.

David frequently advises private equity sponsors, their portfolio companies and middle-market businesses on growth initiatives, capital formation issues and securities and other regulatory matters. David has experience representing clients across the fashion, apparel, distribution, consumer products, media, manufacturing, technology, hospitality and shipping industries, among others.
