

Student Profile: President's Medallion Winner Jeremy C. Daniel

Published in Loyola Law

June 15, 2007

Each year, Loyola President Michael J. Garanzini, S.J., honors one student from each of the University's schools with the President's Medallion, recognizing excellence in scholarship, leadership, integrity, and community service. Jeremy C. Daniel, a 3L, is the School of Law's 2006-07 honoree. In her nomination, Dean Jean Gaspardo wrote, "Jeremy is truly an extraordinary student who brings great honor to the School of Law. His academic excellence is coupled with a generous spirit to help others."
