Christina Romero works closely with her clients, planning for their futures. Serving high-net-worth and ultra-high-net-worth individuals and their families, she focuses her practice on estate and trust planning and administration to create outcomes that generate security and tax efficiency for years to come. She also advises clients in connection with charitable planning, including the formation, registration and dissolution of charitable entities.

Attention to detail, balancing long-term and short-term goals

An active listener, Christina's practice consists of finding answers to her clients' complex legal questions. Staying on top of legislative changes, she remains ready and able to advise clients in connection with their personal, philanthropic and business affairs. She also has experience with Surrogate's Court procedure and contested matters.
