Bora Nieds concentrates her practice on litigation and enforcement matters with a focus on the financial services industry and the federal securities laws.

Trusted advocate in complex litigation and regulatory matters

Bora regularly represents banks, broker-dealers, trading firms, futures commission merchants, companies and individuals in high-stakes litigation in federal and state courts. Her litigation experience includes complex commercial disputes, as well as class action and derivative suits. Bora also regularly defends clients in arbitration proceedings, including disputes between broker-dealers and customers, where her advocacy has resulted in numerous favorable awards.

In addition to her litigation experience, Bora advises clients throughout regulatory and enforcement proceedings before financial regulators. She helps clients navigate regulatory scrutiny and resolve investigations in a manner that minimizes business disruption and risk, offering practical strategies to protect their interests at every stage. Whether in litigation, arbitration or regulatory proceedings, clients rely on Bora to cut through complexity and deliver results in high-pressure environments.
