Amber Haggins is Katten's senior director of Workplace Experience, Inclusion & Talent. In this role, she collaborates with the executive Workplace Experience & Inclusion Committee and other key partners to embed inclusion into the firm's day-to-day operations, including hiring, developing, retaining and educating the firm's attorney and business professional populations. Amber also provides leadership and guidance to the firm's affinity groups, including the Women's Inclusion Network, Committee on Race and Ethnic Diversity, Partner Collective on Race and Ethnic Diversity, Katten Parents Affinity Group, Black Attorneys Affinity Group, LGBTQ+ Coalition, and Jewish Cultural Affinity Group.

Experience rooted in leading culture initiatives and the law

Amber brings to the table over 15 years of experience in leading transformational change. She has helped organizations across industries enhance their brands, workplace culture and performance. Amber is passionate about empowering individuals, organizations and communities to recognize their ability to create impactful change through inclusive environments, clear purpose and strong brands.

A former AmLaw 100 firm attorney, Amber previously held leadership roles in the professional services, government and aerospace industries, where she was responsible for driving the strategy and execution of culture initiatives in alignment with business goals, including talent acquisition, learning and development, and retention.
