Sravya Vallapureddy focuses her practice on commercial litigation matters.

Diligent and effective advocacy

During law school, Sravya was a staff member as a 2L and an articles editor as 3L on the Emory Law Journal. She also served as the vice president of communications for the South Asian Law Student Association.

Sravya's experience includes a 1L summer internship with the New York Attorney General's Office in the Consumer Frauds Bureau, an externship in the Hearings Unit of the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission where she worked under a judge, and an externship with the Federal Trade Commission. These experiences have enabled her to gain valuable hands-on experience with the litigation process, and have helped her become a detail-oriented legal researcher and writer as well as an effective advocate.
