William Koch focuses his practice on private credit matters. He is focused on supporting clients with thoughtful, detail-oriented work that advances their financing objectives. By combining strong attention to detail with a commitment to learning the nuances of each transaction, William aims to provide reliable support that helps clients and deal teams execute with confidence.

Dedicated to client success in an evolving marketplace

During law school, William concentrated his studies on the intersection of law and evolving financial markets. He worked closely with a corporate law professor on projects examining corporate governance issues and the US Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC)'s regulation of stablecoins, which gave him practical experience applying legal analysis to evolving issues in financial markets.

William strives to bring a thorough approach to his work, ensuring matters are handled with precision and care. His goal is to provide clear guidance that supports clients in achieving their objectives in the evolving private credit space.
