Alexander Leseney represents companies in high-stakes litigation in state and federal court, as well as in alternative dispute resolution. Across antitrust, class action, trademark, copyright, aviation, construction, real estate, land use and contract disputes, he brings broad subject-matter experience and an ability to distill highly complex concepts into digestible pieces. Clients facing contentious, high-risk disputes value his versatile skill set and clear, thorough communication.

Focus on what matters, from start to finish

Alexander provides comprehensive, pragmatic counsel at every stage of a dispute, from pre-litigation all the way through appeal, as well as in alternative dispute resolution. Colleagues and supervisors note his skill in tackling the most complex matters and identifying the key issues on which to focus the team's efforts.

A strong researcher and writer, Alexander frequently holds the first and last pen on substantial filings. He has extensive experience preparing and filing pleadings, dispositive motions, and briefs in both federal and state courts. Alexander builds high-level strategy around realistic goals and directs each day-to-day task toward advancing that strategy.

In law school, he served as a legal writing fellow, assisting as a student instructor in the legal research and writing program, and was on the editorial board of the Virginia Journal of International Law.
