Mark Ciani is an experienced trial lawyer whose practice focuses on complex commercial litigation. Mark's clients span many industries and include banks, investors, hedge funds, public and private companies, hospital operators, and high-net-worth families. He acts as trial counsel and advises clients on a host of different matters, from shareholder class action and derivative suits to private and regulatory antitrust matters to Ponzi scheme litigation to real estate disputes and general commercial litigation. Mark frequently serves as lead counsel on his clients' most important cases.

Helping diverse clients with anti-trust litigation

Mark's has designed strategies to achieve favorable outcomes for clients involved facing nine and 10 figure exposures, when confronted with allegations of antitrust violations, breach of contract, fraud, breach of fiduciary duty, and securities fraud, among many others. Mark also has significant experience representing clients in antitrust matters before enforcement agencies. His antitrust representations include merger clearance cases, class actions and government civil investigations.

Companies seek Mark's counsel on a range of antitrust issues, including price fixing, market allocation, group boycotts, and other horizontal restraints. He deals with Robinson-Patman Act problems, monopolization, licensing and other intellectual property issues.

Mark also maintains an active pro bono practice, defending gun control laws against Second Amendment constitutional challenges. As part of this practice, he has advocated before the First, Second, Fourth, Seventh, Ninth and Tenth Circuit Courts of Appeals, as well as numerous federal district courts and state courts.
