Carolyn Passen focuses her practice on intellectual property (IP) litigation and counseling, with an emphasis on trademarks, copyrights and trade secrets. She is also a skilled litigator, representing clients in complex commercial disputes, including high-profile defamation cases involving major media corporations.

Helping clients protect, enforce and defend their most valuable assets

Carolyn advises clients on the full lifecycle of IP — from clearance and protection to enforcement and high-stakes litigation. Drawing on her depth of litigation experience, combined with her strategic approach to counseling, she helps clients proactively mitigate risk while positioning cases for successful resolution when disputes arise. Carolyn represents companies ranging from emerging brands to Fortune 100 businesses across a variety of industries, including fashion, hospitality, media and technology. In 2026, World Trademark Review 1000 named Carolyn among the world's leading trademark professionals based on peer and client feedback. She has also been consecutively recognized by Best Lawyers in America in the area of Trademark Law for the last three years, along with numerous rankings by Chambers USA.

In addition to her IP practice, Carolyn has extensive courtroom experience handling other complex commercial disputes, including defamation cases stemming from statements made during public broadcasts or in the press.
