

Considerations for Family Offices and Businesses Under the New Regime

Presented by Katten and RSM

November 18, 2024

Katten, along with RSM, will present the "Considerations for Family Offices and Businesses Under the New Regime" post-election webinar at 1:00 p.m. (CT) on Monday, November 18. Speakers including Transactional Tax Department Chair and Family Offices Co-Chair Saul Rudo and Private Wealth Partner Adam Damerow will discuss the significant short- and medium-term implications for investors and business owners, including family offices, that shifts in administration can have. They will discuss the meaningful impact on after-tax investment and business performance, as well as estate tax planning, from potential changes in tax policies, including modifications to corporate and individual tax and capital gains rates, business and individual taxation, as well as estate and gift tax provisions, and how family offices, businesses and business owners should consider the potential effects of these changes on transactions involving business and family ownership, including both acquisitions and divestitures and other liquidity transactions.
