

Dan Huffenus Moderates 11th Annual Outlook on the Commercial Real Estate Market

January 31, 2018

Dan Huffenus, managing partner of Katten's Charlotte office and head of its Real Estate practice group, served as moderator for the 11th Annual Outlook on the Commercial Real Estate Market event in Charlotte on January 11. Panelists discussed the current economic conditions, how they are impacting commercial real estate, and what the future holds for Charlotte and the surrounding region's real estate market, all of which is explored in coverage of the event from the Charlotte Business Journal and The Charlotte Observer. Panelists also described the importance of engaging early with the young leadership of Charlotte's recently elected city council and the new federal tax reform's implications for real estate.

The event was co-sponsored by Katten and real estate firm Cushman & Wakefield, Inc.
