

Seventh Circuit Affirms Trademark Win for Katten's Client Pepsi, Gatorade

September 13, 2019

In June 2018, Katten Intellectual Property partner Floyd Mandell and associate Julia Mazur successfully represented PepsiCo Inc. in a significant win in a trademark suit brought against PepsiCo Inc. and The Gatorade Company Inc. by a sports nutrition consulting firm, SportFuel Inc., for its use of the slogan, "Gatorade The Sports Fuel Company." The case received nationwide publicity. A recent article published in Law360 describes how the Seventh Circuit United States Court of Appeals affirmed the ruling back in June of the Illinois District Court that ruled in favor of PepsiCo Inc. and The Gatorade Company, which found that the slogan is fair use under the Lanham Act.

According to Law360, the Seventh Circuit unanimously agreed with the District Court that Gatorade "didn't use the term 'sports fuel' as a trademark but as a description of its products" and concluded that the company used the "sports fuel" slogan fairly and in good faith by providing "enough evidence to show that it adopted the slogan to reflect its various sports fuel products and to help the company better describe its business."

"We are pleased with the outcome of the case and look forward to continuing our mission to fuel athletic performance," said a spokeswoman for Gatorade, Katie Montiel Vidaillet, to Law360.
