The Dallas Business Journal announced that Katten was named one of the Best Places to Work in North Texas in 2021 for the second consecutive year. As part of its 19th annual Best Places to Work Awards, the Dallas Business Journal selected Katten from over 380 nominated companies in the medium-sized category. The nominated companies received the highest employee survey scores among their peer companies in their size category.

"This is more than anything else a testament to the great people we have working here at Katten," said Mark Solomon, managing partner of the Dallas office. "I'm so proud of everyone here and this firm to be named a Best Place to Work two years in a row."

This year marked Katten's third year in Dallas, and Katten has quickly become one of the fastest growing law firms in the city. Today, the office has more than 40 top attorneys assisting clients in various areas including Finance, Private Equity, Mergers and Acquisitions, Health Care, White Collar and Internal Investigations, Insolvency and Restructuring, Real Estate, Corporate and Litigation.

Winning companies and rankings for each category will be announced at an event in Dallas on October 21.

Here are the best medium companies to work for in North Texas.
