

Law360 Heralds the Arrival of Stephen Morris at Katten

April 8, 2022

In an article about why he chose Katten, partner Stephen Morris spoke with Law360 about joining the firm's Financial Markets and Funds practice in New York. He plans to focus his practice on broker-dealer and futures commission merchant issues, as well as on emerging crypto matters.

On joining Katten, Stephen stated, "What really I think loomed large for me in considering the move to Katten was the opportunity to stretch a little bit, and to start getting out of this very comfortable zone I found myself in. At law firms, you don't get the easy questions, you get the harder ones but also the kind of obscure ones. There are lots of capable in-house lawyers who can field everything else. What they reach out for is the thing that will really stretch you."

Global Financial Markets and Funds Chair Lance Zinman lauded the move, stating, "Steve will use the practical experience and insight he gained while counseling a major player in the market to enhance our ability to provide thorough and thoughtful advice to our clients."
