July 25, 2025

Transactional Tax Planning Partner Loren Lembo's arrival at Katten's New York office has garnered widespread media coverage, including from Bloomberg Law, Bloomberg Tax, Law360 and more.

"At this stage in my career, it was important for me to be at a firm where the caliber of both the work and the people is truly high," Loren told Law360. "I joined Katten because it is a top-notch law firm with very robust funds, [Mergers and Acquisitions] M&A and [Private Equity] PE practices — and it's a place where I knew I could bring my experience, contribute meaningfully and be a valuable asset to the team." She added that the firm's "welcoming culture, strong collaboration across practice groups, and the high quality and wide-ranging scope of tax planning services" made it clear that joining Katten was the "right fit" both professionally and personally.

Transactional Tax Planning Partner and Chair Saul Rudo, Family Offices co-chair, commented on Loren's extensive experience in the New York Law Journal. "She's got a broad base and background, and therefore can help us as we continue to grow a lot of transactional areas," he said. "She, particularly, is an expert in funds, with private equity funds, hedge funds and other funds." He noted Katten's robust and growing financial services practice that involves a lot of fund work, as well as work for financial services firms related to M&A transactions or investments they may be doing.
