

Joshua Rubenstein Co-Authors Chapter in A Guide to International Estate Planning

September 30, 2026

Joshua S. Rubenstein, partner and global chair of Katten's Private Wealth Department, co-authored the "International Aspects of Matrimonial Property Rights" chapter in the newly released third edition of "A Guide to International Estate Planning: Design, Administration, and Compliance." The latest from the American Bar Association is a go-to resource for anyone who helps families move wealth across borders, including lawyers, fiduciaries, family office professionals, accountants and wealth advisors. This new edition speaks to a reality many advisors know well: families and their assets increasingly stretch across more than one country.

Like the editions before it, the guide takes a well-rounded approach. It blends advisory insight, hands-on guidance and a close look at US federal and state law, while also bringing international perspectives on the questions that arise when advising clients abroad or administering estates, trusts and entities with global ties.

Written by an international team of top practitioners, academics and tax professionals, the guide offers the depth, practical insight and global perspective needed to design effective structures, stay on top of international compliance and help families pass wealth from one generation to the next.
