Knowing when to move quickly

Fast-moving private equity firms need legal advisers that don't hesitate. Staying focused on her clients' goals, Bonita knows when it's best to settle before legal fees climb and when it's time to fight. She exercises that judgment for large private equity firms and their portfolio companies in complex commercial litigation, focusing on M&A disputes and labor issues. Her experience across many industries — including lending, technology and manufacturing — allows her to analyze any type of business dispute in the context of its competitive environment. Bonita also has handled the defense of many class action lawsuits across a broad spectrum of issues.

Financial institutions acting as trustees for high-net-worth trusts call on her in sometimes-sensitive estate litigation. Bonita also understands the unique dynamics of family-owned businesses and has helped them resolve shareholder and partner disputes.

While Bonita places a premium on efficiency, she knows there are times when clients should pursue a more patient strategy, and, if necessary, take a fight to trial. Her trial work includes successful results for clients in matters involving breach of contract, shareholder and business valuations, theft of trade secrets, breach of fiduciary duties, defense of age and other types of discrimination claims and non-compete agreements.
