Eli Burriss represents clients in sophisticated litigation matters, with a scope that includes derivative actions, M&A disputes, software license and data breach litigation, antitrust litigation, and trade secret litigation. Eli also has extensive experience litigating matters that arise under the Employee Retirement Income Security Act (ERISA), including 401(k) litigation, employee stock ownership plan (ESOP) litigation, and representing some of the world's largest health plan administrators and insurers, advising on a variety of litigation matters, including anti-fraud litigation, provider disputes and regulatory issues.

Seasoned trial counsel

Eli's experience ranges from state regulatory and licensing inquiries, to arbitrations, and litigating matters at trial and appellate levels, representing clients before numerous trial courts as well as state and federal courts of appeals. He also has helped many parties navigate qui tam litigation.

On behalf of clients from a variety of industries, Eli has served throughout his career as trial counsel representing clients in complex litigation across the country as well as in cross-board arbitrations. He has represented clients in state and federal courts against allegations of unfair competition, ERISA, breach of fiduciary duty, deceptive trade practices, trademark violations, breach of contract, vicarious liability, product liability and tortious interference with contractual relationships.

Eli has a strong commitment to pro bono service and he frequently assists members of the military, veterans and their families in his community.
